Dear Harold, Aug 2, 1991

Enclosed is a copy of an article on Stone's movie that appeared in the Sunday (July 28, 1991) edition of the N.Y. Times in the Arts and Entertainment section. You may already have it. I have made a copy of it for my own file. Although it raises a few of the criticisms, it seems on the whole to present Stone's views unchallenged. Also, it further confirms what you have been arguing — that Stone intends this to be history, not just a fictional account. (For example, the article states: "Every point, every argument, every detail in the movie, he says, has been researched, can be documented and is justified." — that is quite a claim given what you have tried to bring to his attention!) Thanks for sending your correspondence — it may become useful if I am asked to comment on the film when it is released. Also, thanks for the other articles, especially those on the Isaac B. Singer and composer Earl Robinson. Regarding Robinson's song "Joe Hill", I have a recording of Paul Robeson singing it. I made a tape of a record our local library had.

Hope you are well and it hasn't been too hot up in Maryland as it has on the rest of the Eastern seaboard. Say hello to Lillian.

Yours,
Jerry
